eligible under the program may obtain necessary documents without charge at participating division of motor vehicles locations, participating vital statistics offices, or participating mobile units or from authorized representatives that offer driver's licenses, identification card services, or vital statistics certificates and reports.

The bill establishes that an individual may self-attest to the individual's eligibility under the program. The bill does not change the identity verification requirements that may be required to obtain a necessary document.

The bill also specifies that an individual who is eligible for the program is not subject to the fees charged by the department of revenue for driver's licenses or identification cards.

1     Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Colorado:

2             SECTION 1. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly 3     finds and declares that:

4             (a) The cost of identification documents can be prohibitive for 5     some individuals, particularly individuals experiencing homelessness, 6     individuals fleeing domestic violence, and individuals who have been 7     displaced by a natural disaster;

8             (b) Without necessary identification documents, individuals
9     cannot access financial services, drive legally, comply with certain law 10    enforcement requests, or access health care, housing, employment, or 11    public services and benefits;

12            (c) Since 2016, the necessary document program has provided a 13    critical service to eligible individuals who are unable to pay for essential 14    identification documents;

15            (d) Certain demographic groups, such as residents of rural 16    Colorado; unaccompanied youth; individuals who are lesbian, gay, 17    bisexual, or transgender; and Black people, Indigenous people, and other 18    people of color, have been overrepresented in their participation in the 19    necessary document program and may face additional barriers to

1 accessing the identification documents necessary to meet basic life needs;

2 (e) Because of the program's complicated structure, geographic 3 inconsistencies, and low level of funding, which has remained stagnant 4 since the program's creation, the necessary document program currently 5 falls short of meeting statewide need by as much as 90%; and

6 (f) This has resulted in social service providers running out of 7 vouchers to distribute to individuals in need, and, in some cases, the 8 providers are covering costs out of their own pocket, which has resulted 9 in social service providers having less money for other critical 10 organizational functions.

11 (2) Therefore, the general assembly further declares that it is 12 necessary to adjust the necessary document program to better meet the 13 needs of Colorado by allowing eligible individuals access to identification 14 documents available through the program at the point of service.
