Summary of Legislation

The bill grants newspaper publishers, advertisers, and readers the right to pursue civil action against a person who steals newspapers or who interferes with newspaper distribution.

In any civil action brought under the bill,

- a prevailing plaintiff is entitled to actual damages;
- a prevailing publisher is entitled to a civil penalty of ten dollars for each newspaper obtained illegally; and
- the prevailing party is entitled to attorneys fees and costs.

Background

Under current law, obtaining or exerting unauthorized control over more than five newspapers is an unclassified misdemeanor. For cases involving 100 or fewer newspapers, the offense is punishable by a fine of up to $1,000; for cases involving more than 100 but fewer than 500 newspapers, the offense is punishable by a fine of up to $2,500. For cases involving 500 or more newspapers, the offense is punishable by a fine of up to $5,000. In the last three years, no one has been charged with or convicted of this offense.

State Revenue

Beginning in FY 2016-17, this bill may increase state cash fund revenue from fees by a minimal amount. Parties to a private civil action must pay filing fees for bringing suit in trial courts. To the extent that the bill results in civil action, cash fund revenue may increase. The fiscal note assumes that any increase will be minimal.

TABOR Impact

This bill may increase state cash fund revenue from fees, which may increase the amount of money required to be refunded under TABOR. TABOR refunds are paid out of the General Fund. No TABOR impact is expected in FY 2016-17.

State Expenditures

Beginning in FY 2016-17, this bill may increase workload by a minimal amount in the Judicial Department to hear civil cases concerning newspaper theft. No increase in appropriations is required.

Effective Date

The bill was postponed indefinitely by the Senate State, Veterans, and Military Affairs Committee on May 9, 2016.
