1                   SECTION 1. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly 2 hereby finds, determines, and declares that:

3                   (a) In 1492, Christopher Columbus was given authority by the 4 King and Queen of Spain to sail to the Indies to investigate what 5 Columbus described as the "proper method of converting [Indians]" to 6 Christianity. Columbus was granted "sufficient armament" to certain 7 regions of the Indies for such forced conversion.

8                   (b) Columbus left Spain on May 12, 1492. He never arrived in the 9 Indies, but came upon an island in the Caribbean later called Hispaniola
10 on October 12, 1492, and met the Taino people.

11                   (c) Columbus remarked in Columbus' Journal of his First Voyage
12 that he could "conquer the whole of [the Taino people] with fifty men, 13 and govern them as [he] pleased." Columbus' own journal demonstrates 14 that his objective was to find gold and precious stones.

15                   (d) Under color of authority of the Spanish crown, and using 16 tactics garnered from his years of involvement in the West African slave 17 trade, Columbus engaged in inhumane acts of slavery, sexual 18 exploitation, murder, and torture, which resulted in the annihilation of the 19 Taino people.

20                   (e) Columbus' acts of inhumanity were documented by Bartoleme
21 de las Casas, a Spanish priest, who wrote in his journal:

22                   "And Spaniards have behaved in no other way during the 23 past forty years, down to the present time, for they are still 24 acting like ravening beasts, killing, terrorizing, afflicting,
25 torturing, and destroying the native peoples, doing all this 26 with the strangest and most varied new methods of cruelty,
27 never seen or heard of before, and to such a degree that this

1           Island of Hispaniola once so populous (having a population
2           that I estimated to be more than three million), has now a 3           population of barely two hundred persons."

4           "Their reason for killing and destroying such an 5           infinite number of souls is that the Christians have an 6           ultimate aim, which is to acquire gold, and to swell
7           themselves with riches in a very brief time and thus rise to 8           a high estate disproportionate to their merits. It should be 9           kept in mind that their insatiable greed and ambition, the 10           greatest ever seen in the world, is the cause of their 11           villainies."

12           "They attacked the towns and spared neither the 13           children nor the aged nor pregnant women nor women in 14           childbed, not only stabbing them and dismembering them
15           but cutting them to pieces as if dealing with sheep in a 16           slaughter house. They laid bets as to who, with one stroke 17           of the sword, could split a man in two or could cut off his 18           head or spill out his entrails with a single stroke of the 19           pike."

20           (f) Columbus' cruelty was investigated and he was sent back to 21           Spain in chains, but because of the enormous wealth realized through his 22           exploits, the Spanish Crown freed Columbus, stripped of all his titles, and 23           allowed him to return to the Caribbean.

24           (g) The Spanish conquest and exploitation of the indigenous 25           peoples of the Americas was soon followed by other European nations.
26           The Columbus voyage triggered one of history's greatest slave trades, 27           pillaging of Earth's natural resources, and a level of inhumanity toward

1 indigenous peoples that still exists today.

2 (2) The general assembly further finds and declares that:

3 (a) Despite all attempts by European and Western Hemisphere
4 governments to eradicate indigenous peoples from the Americas, they 5 have overcome such cruelty, exploitation, and inhumanity;

6 (b) The vast contributions made through indigenous peoples'
7 knowledge, science, philosophy, arts, and culture have enabled modern 8 communities to develop and thrive, and should be recognized and valued;

9 (c) A growing number of cities and states have renamed
10 Columbus day, the second Monday of October, as Indigenous Peoples' 11 day, creating an opportunity to promote appreciation, tolerance,
12 understanding, friendship, and partnerships among indigenous peoples 13 and all other persons; and

14 (d) The State of Colorado recognizes the immeasurable
15 contributions of the Italian-American and Spanish-American 16 communities, which communities should be honored. However, the State 17 of Colorado will not honor Christopher Columbus because of his 18 well-documented crimes against humanity.

19 (3) Therefore, in the pursuit of the goals and responsibilities of 20 promoting knowledge about indigenous peoples, recognizing the 21 atrocities perpetrated against indigenous peoples by Christopher 22 Columbus and others, unifying communities, and combating prejudice 23 and eliminating discrimination against indigenous peoples, it is 24 appropriate to rename Columbus day as Indigenous Peoples' day.
