Summary of Legislation

Restitution compensates victims for losses caused by a defendant's criminal actions. Courts must determine restitution based on information provided by prosecuting attorneys. Under current law, restitution must be determined within 91 days after a conviction order is entered and the court may extend this deadline for determining restitution if good cause is shown.

The bill grants the prosecuting attorney 63 days to submit restitution information to the trial court judge following a conviction if the information is not available on the day a conviction is entered. The trial court judge then has an additional 63 days following the submission of restitution information by the district attorney to order restitution.

State Expenditures

If longer restitution timelines lead to more court time, workload to trial courts will increase. However, because the courts may already extend the timeline for good cause, any increase is expected to be minimal.

Local Government

Similar to the state, if longer restitution timelines increase the time for cases, workload to district attorney offices will increase. Any increase is assumed to be minimal.

Effective Date

This bill was signed into law by the Governor and took effect on May 30, 2025, and applies to defendants sentenced on or after this date.
