Summary of Legislation

---

The bill allows for enrolled members of the Southern Ute Indian Tribe and the Ute Mountain Ute Tribe to access any Colorado state park without paying an entrance fee. Members of the tribes must present a current tribal identification card with an intact photo.

The bill also requires that by June 1, 2026, Colorado Parks and Wildlife build on existing efforts to engage with the Southern Ute Indian Tribe, Ute Mountain Ute Tribe, tribal governments, and American Indian and Indigenous communities on opportunities related to Colorado state parks. The Department of Natural Resources must report on the status of these efforts during its annual SMART Act hearing in January 2026 and 2027.

Assumptions

Based on 2023 population data, the fiscal note assumes that 1,770 passes are purchased annually by members of the state's Ute tribes each year. Park passes range from $7 to $74, with the Keep Colorado Wild Pass at $27 being the most common purchase.

State Revenue and Expenditures

Colorado Parks and Wildlife, in the Department of Natural Resources, will incur an ongoing decrease in park entrance fee revenue of approximately $40,000 beginning in FY 2025-26 from the Parks and Outdoor Recreation Cash Fund. Since Colorado Parks and Wildlife has enterprise status, this revenue change will not have any impact on TABOR refunds.

The department will also incur a minimal increase in workload to implement the new entry regulation, increase engagement with tribal community groups, and report on engagement efforts during its SMART Act hearing. No change in appropriations is required.

Effective Date

The bill takes effect 90 days following adjournment of the General Assembly sine die, assuming no referendum petition is filed.
