processes in place, inconsistencies and a lack of clarity in the review process and implementation of the review process may impede effective support for admitted or enrolled students with disabilities;

(III) Based on feedback from students, faculty, and advocacy groups, there is a need for a clear, standardized process for institutions of higher education to review documents, including existing individualized education programs and section 504 plans, to determine whether a student qualifies for an academic adjustment;

(b) The general assembly finds, therefore, that it is necessary to:

(I) Clarify the processes institutions of higher education use to review documentation, including existing individualized education programs and section 504 plans, to determine whether admitted or enrolled students with disabilities qualify for academic adjustments;

(II) Ensure that the processes described in subsection (1)(b)(I) of this section do not create barriers for students with disabilities;

(III) Implement accountability measures for an institution of higher education to fulfill its responsibilities by providing a description of the appeals process that focuses on documentary review; and

(IV) Promote the alignment of state and federal law.
