Re-thinking Your PPE Supply Chain?

Decrease risk and increase your PPE supply with products manufactured in Mexico!

Mexico-based manufacturing operations provide U.S. customers with a strategic alternative to overseas sourcing. The shorter supply chain helps lower transportation costs, accelerate transit times, and improve responsiveness to sudden demand surges. By leveraging nearshore production, organizations can strengthen supply chain resilience while reducing exposure to global disruptions, labor shortages, geopolitical uncertainty, and over-reliance on a single region or vendor.

Why Mexico?

- Friendly trade partner: Mexico is the U.S.' largest trading partner. It allows companies to import and export goods to and from the U.S. tariff-free under certain conditions.
- Lower shipping costs & quicker transit times: Fluctuating oil prices and trade negotiations between the U.S. and competing countries have increased tariffs on imports and overall shipping costs.
- Decreased risk and diversity of suppliers: Mexico is more accessible than other countries, offering more transportation options such as trains, trucks, or planes.
- Qualified labor: The Mexican government has invested in education, safety & regulations, and structured programs to meet the industrial sector's needs.
