Dear Friends,

Our community’s most impactful resource is not money. It is changemakers like you. Changemaking is not an ethereal, undefined concept. It is a set of values, practices, and skills learned over time: empathy, the courage to speak up and engage, and the practice of giving whether it be time, ideas, or money. Never have I lived anywhere with so many changemakers.

JCF serves as a platform for changemakers to be informed and strategic. We want you – altogether as a community – to make the greatest impact because you are connected and collaborative. One person’s actions amplify into group action, which turns into a mighty movement to address unmet needs. Here are some examples of impacts you created through JCF in 2021:

- COVID Response & Recovery: Donors contributed an additional $245,000, 100% of which was allocated to local nonprofits, including $100,000 to arts and culture organizations.

- Affordable Housing: Anonymous donors worked through JCF to provide $100,000 to Peter’s Place emergency shelters and $70,000 to Housing Solutions Network and its Share Our Spaces campaign.

- Racial Justice: Black Lives Matter and Jefferson Land Trust connected through JCF to support the start-up of Usawa Consulting and their new 16-week Racial Justice Literacy Workshop in which over 20 local nonprofits participated.

- Economic Development: North Olympic Development Coalition and local makers came together through JCF to explore a new Creative Entrepreneurship Network, to find ways we might build our economy back with less dependence on tourism and higher wage jobs for the next generation.

- Education: When Chimacum and Port Townsend school districts wanted to explore ways they could deepen collaboration and find efficiencies, JCF funded the project.

Jefferson County changemakers, we are proud to be in your service. We look forward to seeing where you all take us next!

Happy reading,

Giving Circles are one of the most vibrant forms of community-led action as they empower donors to lead their own learning, collaboration, and innovation.

In 2021, Better Living Through Giving, a JCF Giving Circle, awarded $12,000 to nine nonprofits and individuals to support ideas and initiatives that connect generations, celebrate diversity, and brighten hearts and minds in our community.

“We wanted to hear those ideas that invoke a sudden flutter in one’s heart, that inspire breathless anticipation and engage the imagination,” said Rena Murman, a circle member along with husband Earll and Karen Best, Suzy Caroll, Pam Clise, Janie & Fred Kimball, Ruth Lytle, Roger & Cameron McPherson, Doug Van Allen, Cathie Wier, Tayloe Washburn, and Deborah Winter.

“We are building a life in Jefferson County and part of that for us is connecting with and supporting local nonprofits. Opening a Donor Advised Fund at Jefferson Community Foundation made sense because we can learn from its community knowledge. We also really appreciate JCF’s commitment to bringing a wide range of voices and organizations to the table to forge solutions – as well as its ability to pivot quickly to address emerging needs. Bottom line is we give better when we give through JCF!”

— Kate Roosevelt & Caroline Maillard

“After we moved to Jefferson County and realized the promise and potential of the Jefferson Community Foundation, it was natural for us to transfer our Donor Advised Tributary Fund and put it to work here. JCF is well managed, inspires the community’s collective generosity, and changes lives. That’s a mission we enthusiastically support.”

— Peter Newland & Robyn Johnson
In 2021, Jefferson Community Foundation continued investing in strong and collaborative nonprofits with grants, capacity-building trainings, networking opportunities, fundraising guidance, and nonprofit sector group convening.

Local nonprofit staff, boards and volunteers also benefit from JCF services such as attending one of the workshops held in 2021 on issues they care about, like fundraising, racial justice, and volunteer engagement. JCF is proud to be a go-to support resource for local organizations so they can be as resilient and collaborative as possible.

A LIVING LEGACY

Local Naiome Krienke, a descendant of the Chemakum, S’Klallam, and Makah people, approached JCF with a desire to rediscover the narratives of her Chemakum ancestors and to preserve her cultural heritage.

Inspired by her story and the legacy she intends to build, JCF staff set to task connecting her into our network of changemakers. The result — a grant from Becky and Dale Nienow supporting research into Chemakum history, and the potential to construct a community longhouse in Jefferson County.

THE SHOW WILL GO ON

While the bulk of the COVID Response & Recovery Fund went to health and human services, JCF also knew the importance of arts and culture organizations like Key City Public Theatre to the recovery of our community post-pandemic.

With $32,000 awarded through JCF, KCPT improved the theatre’s ventilation systems and created youth education workshops. Leveraging this momentum, KCPT successfully secured a grant from the M.J. Murdock Charitable Trust to complete a comprehensive remodel of the theater.

“JCF’s impact cannot be understated,” said Executive Artistic Director Denise Winter.

Jefferson Community Foundation serves as a convener of local changemakers, facilitating discourse around specific issues, identifying necessary resources, and providing support as needed to succeed.

By working together through JCF, our community has a greater capacity to create and sustain positive impacts on specific issues.

We approach our role in diverse ways:

Connecting charitable choices so that donors are informed and strategic, and each donation builds upon the last for a greater cumulative effect.

As a facilitator of communication, connection, and collaboration on specific issues.

COVID Response & Recovery: Local donors contributed an additional $245,000 in 2021, 100% of which JCF allocated to local nonprofits, including $100,000 to arts and culture organizations.

Active March 2020 to July 2021, the COVID Response & Recovery Fund raised $955,844* thanks to the generous charitable giving of local donors. A total of $953,810 was allocated to 53 nonprofit organizations to support 60 proposals.

Give Jefferson: JCF is proud to administer United Good Neighbor’s annual Give Jefferson campaign, which for over 65 years has championed local nonprofit organizations mitigating the extraordinary impacts of poverty and providing for basic human needs with dignity and compassion.

Active November 12 - December 31, 2021, Give Jefferson raised $320,397* thanks to the generous charitable giving of local donors. A total of $240,100 was allocated to 32 local nonprofits.

Housing: JCF incubates and houses the Housing Solutions Network to facilitate connectivity, communication, and the co-creation of new strategies to increase the availability of affordable and attainable workforce housing in our region.

HSN fundamentally works to grow a network of housing champions. HSN has created six Housing Action Teams, or HATs, each of which focuses on a different area of need and opportunity.

The HATs are like a toolbox readily available for a property owner, a hopeful renter, or a prospective homebuyer to use in their own way; to solve their particular problem.

Sector Convening: JCF regularly convenes nonprofit sector groups on topics such as food security, emergency financial assistance, and childcare, making space for organizations to form relationships that lead to better collaboration and discovery of gaps in services so that they can better serve our community.

Women & Girls: The Fund for Women & Girls works for a world where women and girls are safe, secure, equal, and empowered by: providing grants to Jefferson County nonprofit organizations for programs that support that mission; bringing information about issues affecting women and their families to residents and organizations; and linking like-minded individuals and organizations to leverage community resources.

FWG raises funds by producing the Port Townsend Wearable Art Show, a showcase of inspired design that melds art, recycling, and fashion. Due to the pandemic, there was no show in 2021 however FWG was able to make grants to the Olympic Peninsula YMCA and The Benji Project to support projects that serve girls in Jefferson County.

Racial Justice: Black Lives Matter and Jefferson Land Trust connected through JCF to support the start-up of Usawa Consulting and their new 16-week Racial Justice Literacy Workshop in which over 20 local nonprofits participated.
Environment: Leading local efforts to sequester carbon, Olympic Carbon Fund is working to restore healthy soils and ecosystems and promote regenerative agricultural practices in Jefferson County.

Since the fund was established in June 2020, OCF has partnered with 25 commercial farms, 13 community gardens, and numerous private homesteads to incorporate over 110 cubic yards of biochar into the food-producing soils of the region.

Partnering with the public and private sectors to create an informed and efficient resourcing landscape for social change.

Philanthropy: In 2021, JCF held two Zoom gatherings of grantmakers — private and family foundations from around the Pacific Northwest — to ensure they are informed about Jefferson County, our nonprofit landscape, the issues our community is facing, and to encourage them to give more here.

Economic Development: JCF worked with North Olympic Development Coalition to convene local makers and explore a new Creative Entrepreneurship Network, to find ways we might build our economy back with less dependence on tourism and higher wage jobs for young people collaborating with local makers.

Facilitated work sessions engaged local microenterprises who identified areas of business development that are critical to their success.
