The Houses of God and Man

Fifth week in the series: Return & Rebuild

Ezra 5

After the discouraged Jews stopped working on the temple, the prophets speak to encourage the work. In response, the work resumes, but the Jews face bureaucratic challenges from government officials. As they navigate those challenges, we will see how building the house of God still acknowledges the authority of the house of man. But we'll also see how God's presence and work permeates everything that happens on earth.

Discussion Questions:

1. What's an example of a project that you started but never finished?
2. How are you tempted to make your own house more important than God's house?
3. When have you been surprised to find out someone noticed what you did?
4. How does it make you feel to know that God's eye is upon us?
5. What is your general attitude toward the government?
