

Attend a Field Day to see and taste over 50 varieties of Icebox Watermelon!

Thursday, September 2, 2004

4pm – 5pm

Vancouver Research and Extension Center,
Vancouver, WA

Come and see over 50 varieties of Icebox Watermelon growing in the field, taste the difference in flavors, and talk with researchers about growing these hot new fruits in our region. Icebox Watermelon are:

- Rapidly gaining popularity, as their smaller size is ideal for small families and for storage in home refrigerators.
- Under 12 lbs when fully mature
- Early Maturing
- Now available with a wide range of size, color, sweetness, and season length.
